

Index of all women named in volumes 1-18 inclusive of The Woman Engineer

The digitised Women Engineer volumes are searchable per volume but there is no index provided and there is no search facility across all volumes. This index is of all the women named in the volumes.

Since it is easy to search within a volume (which is 5 years' worth of the journals), only the volume number is given, to allow users to go to that volume to search for all entries for that name.

However, it is worth bearing in mind that the Optical Character Recognition (OCR) used in the scanning process has some faulty areas, so that the search function will not find the name you are looking for. For example, the search function will not return what you expect, if the OCR has added a spurious gap in the middle, or in some extreme cases not recognised an entire paragraph or page. It is also possible that a few names were miss-spelled in the original journal.

From volume 18 onwards the page layouts sometimes embody text in an image-type of format such that OCR does not work at all and names will not be found in the search facility. From Vol 18, issue 20 onwards the New Members list is formatted in this way. The names have been included in this index but will NOT be findable by the search facility.

Note that the names as listed here include as much detail as possible to make it easier for users to be sure they are looking for the right person. Hence some actual mentions in TWE might just give title and surname, and may not use initials or given names.

From the earlier entries, I have retained what now looks rather a dated style, by keeping the titles Miss and Mrs where these were used in the text of the journal. This is to help keep track of maiden/married name changes which can be problematic for researchers otherwise.

The nobility and monarchy are listed by their titles within the Last Name column, so Lady X is in the L section etc. As with married names, these titles usually relate to the woman's husband or father and her own name is not always given in the journal.

Although some cultures order given names and family names in a different order from the European convention of given name first, family name second, I have used the last name as if it is the family name in all cases.

In case you were wondering why this index is only of the women's names, I have made a judgement that The Woman Engineer is the 'journal of record' for the history of women in engineering. In the early years, it was the only such journal in the world. The men mentioned in The Woman Engineer may well be mentioned elsewhere in the public domain but, in many cases, the women named in The Woman Engineer may not be recorded anywhere else. This is an important record of women engineers at work since 1919.

I have tried to check these entries as much as possible. Apologies if any errors have crept in between what was in the original journal and the entries below.

Dr Nina Baker, September 2016
